HISTORY OF THE POOR HOUSE BISTRO

ESTABLISHED 2005

THIS NEO-CLASSICAL HOUSE WAS BUILT IN THE EARLY 1900s and was originally located on 11th street near San Jose State University. It served as the Gamma XI Chapter House of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. When the house was purchased by Giuseppe and Giuseppa Meduri in 1951, it was then moved to its current location at 91 S. Autumn Street.

Consulato Anthony Meduri (Tony Meduri), Giuseppe and Giuseppa's only son, and his wife Sally, lived in the house briefly in the late 50s, before buying a home in Campbell where they raised their seven children. After inheriting the house, Tony rented it out through most of the 60s and 70s. When Tony passed away in 1983, Sally Meduri became the sole owner.

In 1993, Jay Meduri, the family's youngest child, moved into the home. He lived there for seven years; his son Jackson was born in 1998 and lived there for the first two years of his life.

It was while working for American Airlines, that Jay traveled many times to New Orleans. As a musician and player of Blues music, who had been in several bands during the late 80s to early 90s, Jay grew passionate about the New Orleans culture and its traditions of great music, food, and celebration.

By attending the New Orleans Jazz & Heritage Festival, Jay discovered the variety of New Orleans cuisine and began his education in food and cooking. Here he learned and developed recipes that he would eventually serve at the Poor House Bistro. After spending five years working as a food server, cook, and manager in various restaurants, Jay eventually returned to school, graduating from San Jose State University in Hospitality Management, to begin the journey of opening his own restaurant; his mother Sally gave her approval to open it in the family home.

Remodeling construction began in May 2000 and was completed in May 2005. Jay decided to call his restaurant "The Poor House Bistro," named after the famous Po Boy Sandwiches served in New Orleans. Today, PHB is a place where people can come together, enjoying great food and music, in a fun and funky environment, giving everyone a little taste of New Orleans in San Jose!
